Untold Stories are a collection of historical narratives involving a diverse person, community, and/or event. These narratives uncover the contributions that ethnically and culturally diverse individuals have had in the advancement of the Natural Resource Industry. Likewise, many of these narratives are better understood with the context of policies and governmental acts that had intentional adverse impacts to marginalized communities. The objective of these narratives is to provide a counter-narrative to curriculum that often forgets or pushes these events or contributions to the margins.

Through learning more about these stories our aim is for students to gain a deeper appreciation, understanding and respect for the contributions made by all ethnic communities to the Natural Resources we enjoy today.
